DELTA® STYLE MEETS SIMPLE SOPHISTICATION
New Dryden™ Bath Collection Draws Inspiration from Art Deco

TORONTO, ON (September 2008) – Delta® introduces a high style faucet collection inspired by the Art Deco period of the 1920s and 1930s. The clean lines and geometric forms of the Dryden™ Bath Collection harken back to the glamorous heyday of Hollywood and offer a simple, yet sophisticated, design.

“When combined with multiple finish options, Dryden creates style flexibility in a variety of settings – from old-world to arts and crafts to modern,” said Anita Griffin, Canadian marketing brand manager for Delta Faucet. “With a range of lavatory, Roman tub, shower options, and coordinated accessories, the new Dryden line offers a full complement of bath products to create the perfect look in any home environment. The lavatory faucets also feature a 1.5 gallons per minute (gpm) or 5.6 litres per minute (lpm) aerator flow, providing homeowners with a water efficient option for their bathrooms.”

The transitional square styling of the Dryden Bath Collection will appeal to consumers looking for simple lines that reflect their personal style and offer a clean, uncluttered look for their home. With a riser that evokes the essence of a Roman Tuscan column, the classic lines of the single-handle vessel lavatory create a timeless, yet sophisticated bath. Lavatory options include a single- and two-handle centerset, mini-widespread and widespread. A three-hole Roman tub and a Roman tub with matching hand shower add functionality to the collection. In the shower, the Delta MultiChoice® Universal valve offers maximum flexibility by giving homeowners the choice of single- and two-function pressure balance, and a dual function thermostatic control step-up option. In addition, the square raincan showerhead invites a drenching, invigorating shower experience.

Available in Chrome, Aged Pewter, Brilliance[®] Stainless or Venetian Bronze[®], Dryden's finish options transform the faucet to make it a versatile choice for any bath.
